

BOUNCE INNOVATION HUB — SPACES FOR GROWTH

Inside Bounce Innovation Hub

Bounce Innovation Hub is home to founders, creatives, researchers, and growing companies building the future of Northeast Ohio.

Within the historic Goodrich Building, flexible offices, studios, labs, and coworking spaces support ideas at every stage—from early experimentation to scaling companies.

This collection offers a look inside the spaces where that work happens.

Designed for momentum.

Kabylia Baguette — Suite 108

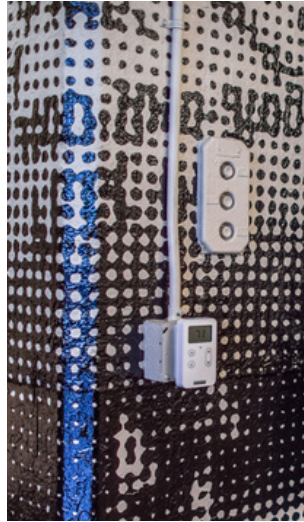

Kabylia Baguette was designed to feel like home, as if sitting at a kitchen table sharing coffee with a neighbor. Open shelving, Algerian fabrics and ceramics, family photos, and playful details bring warmth and personality to the space. Color ties two cultures together, inviting guests to feel immersed in the world they create.

THE GENERATOR — FIRST FLOOR

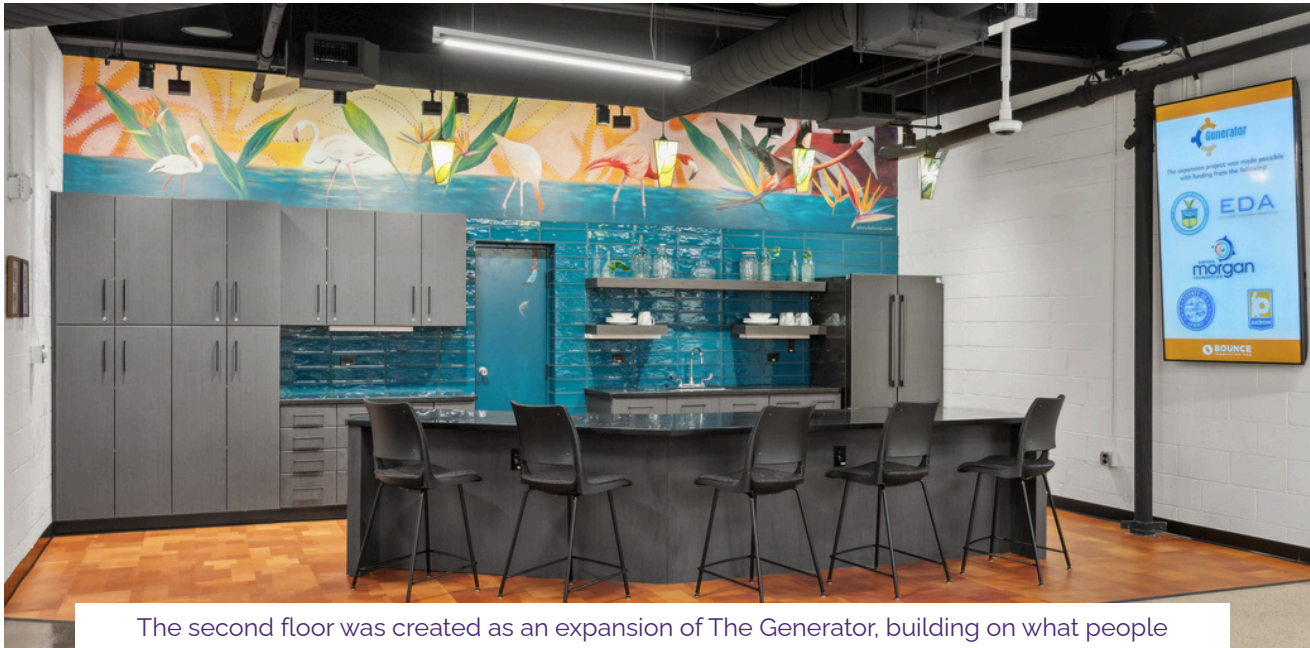

The Generator was designed as a shared engine for entrepreneurship at Bounce. Through thoughtful placemaking, the space blends history, design, and function to create an environment where work and community thrive together.

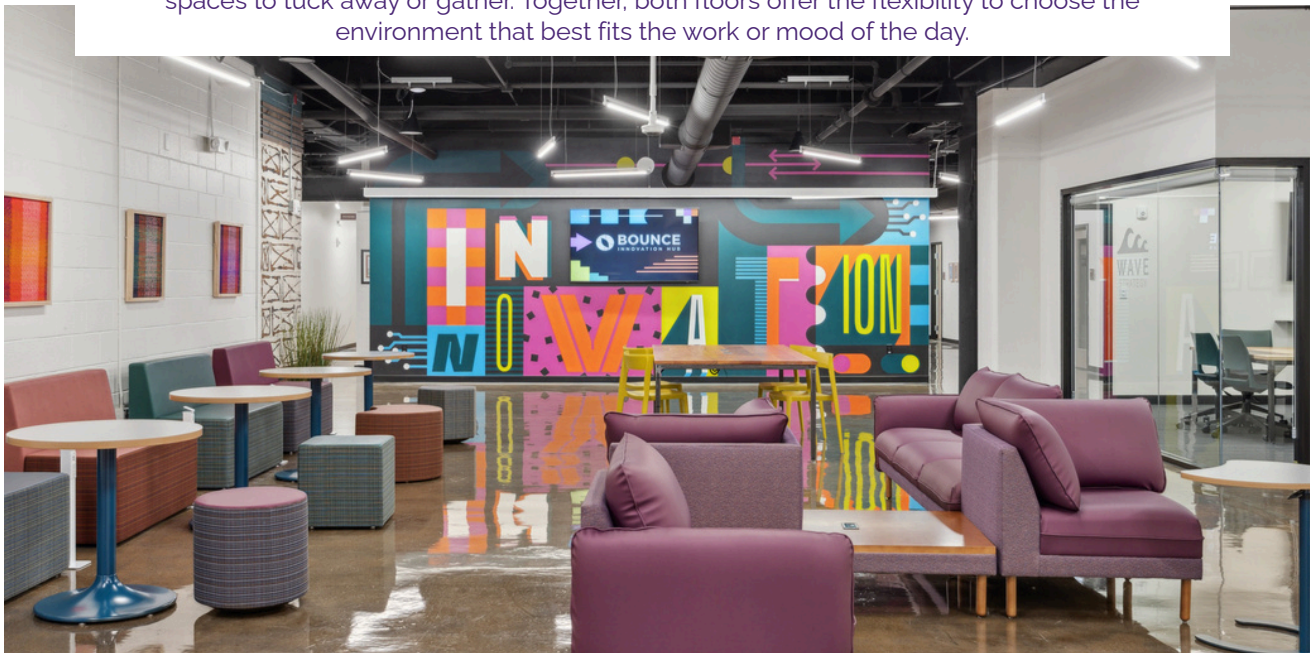

The first floor was designed to feel light, open, and energizing, with high ceilings, natural light, and flexible seating that encourages collaboration. Phone booths, conference rooms, and event space support focused work and larger gatherings, establishing the active, welcoming foundation of The Generator experience.

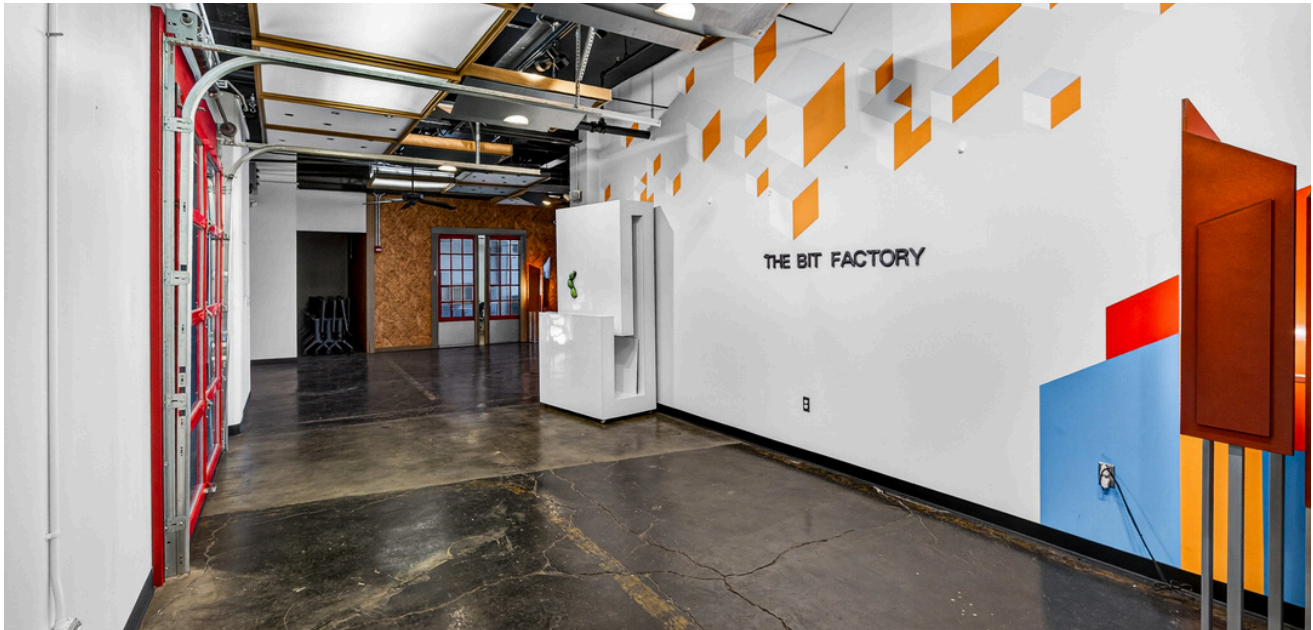

THE GENERATOR — SECOND FLOOR

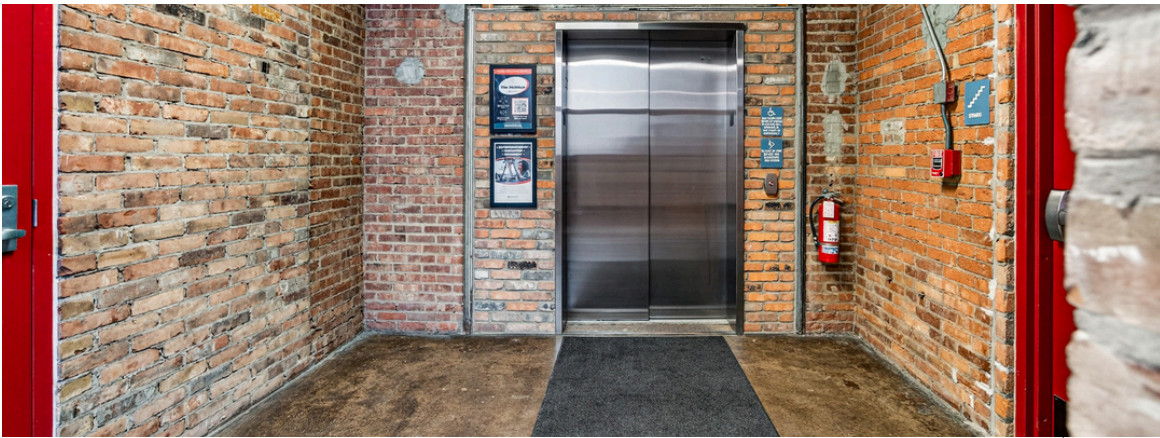

The second floor was created as an expansion of The Generator, building on what people loved about the first floor while adding more opportunities for focus and comfort. Private seating, richer color, a central kitchen, classrooms, and additional conference rooms create spaces to tuck away or gather. Together, both floors offer the flexibility to choose the environment that best fits the work or mood of the day.

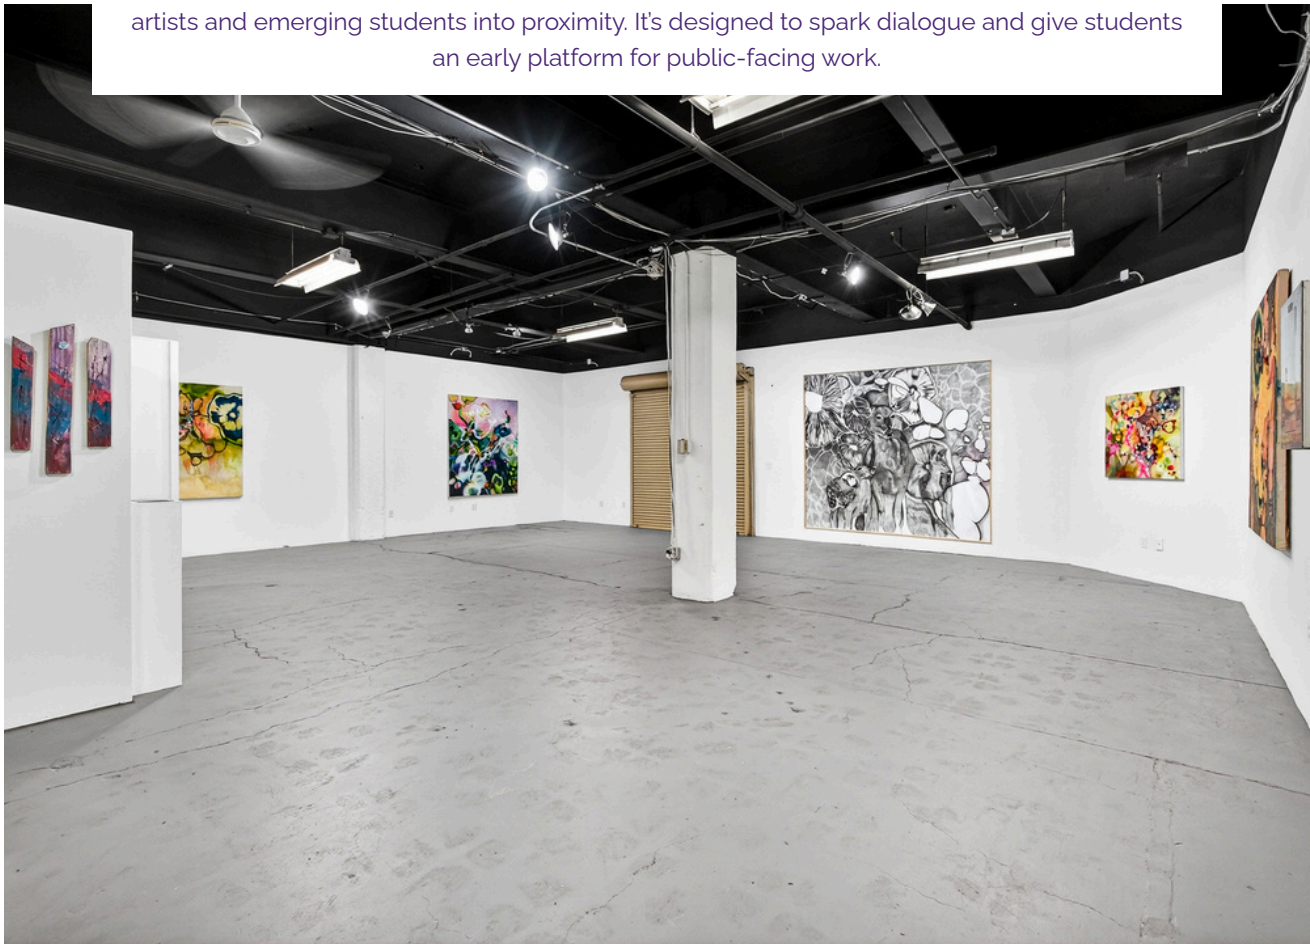

Any Means Necessary uses this warehouse as a high-functioning fulfillment space built for speed and clarity. Inventory bins are clearly labeled and designed to move easily as needs change. Packing stations sit near the windows—because even shipping days deserve a great view.

Curated Storefront — Suite 409

2745 SF

The fourth floor suite pairs subsidized artist studios with a project space for student exhibitions from the University of Akron and Kent State University. The layout intentionally brings working artists and emerging students into proximity. It's designed to spark dialogue and give students an early platform for public-facing work.

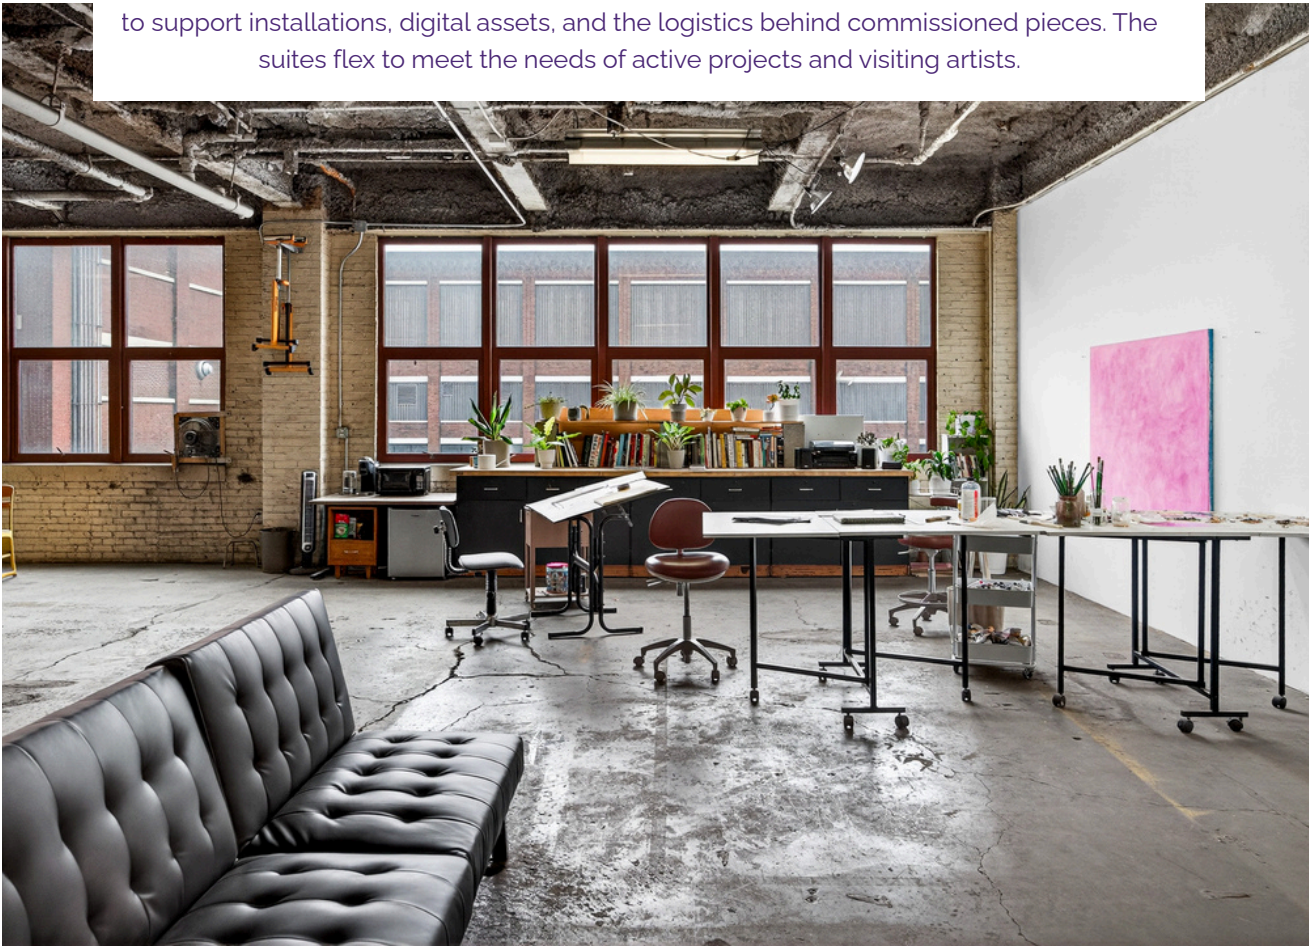

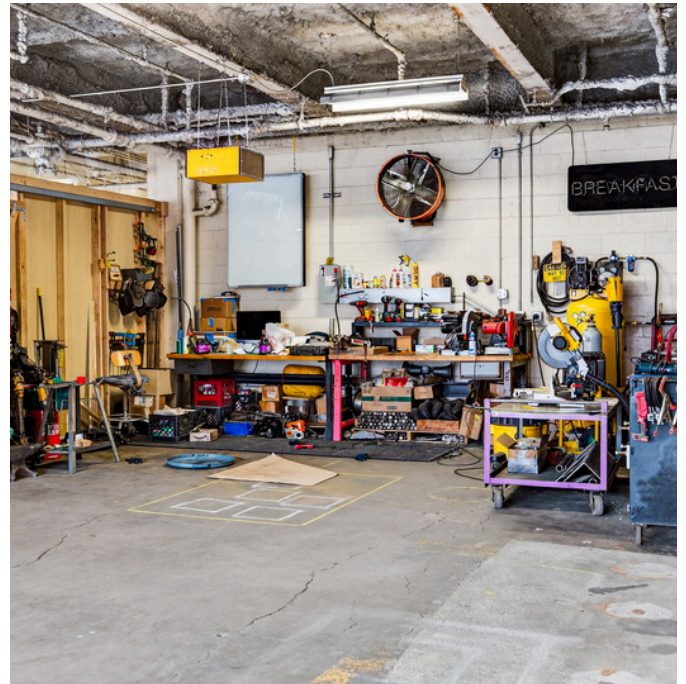

Curated Storefront — Suites

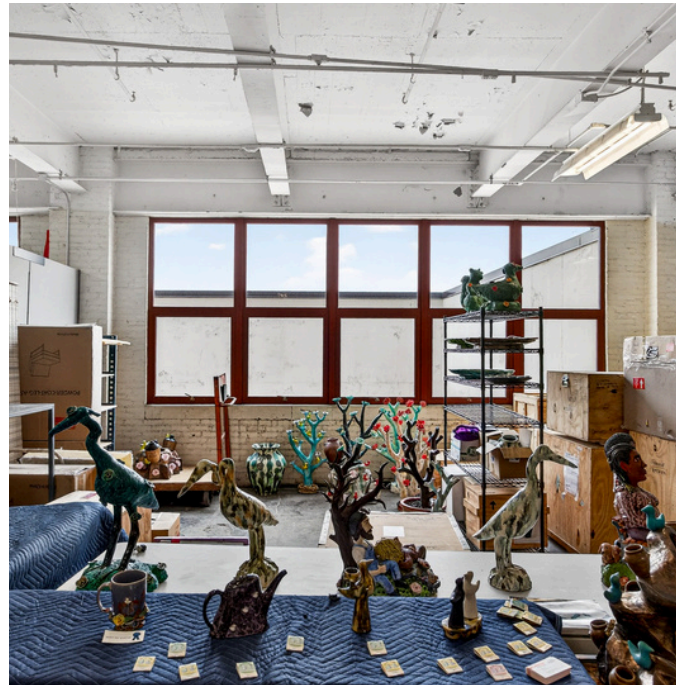

503A & 505

3950 SF

Fifth floor suites serve as the operational hub for Curated Storefront's public art and creative placemaking work. Studio space, storage, and project staging live side-by-side to support installations, digital assets, and the logistics behind commissioned pieces. The suites flex to meet the needs of active projects and visiting artists.

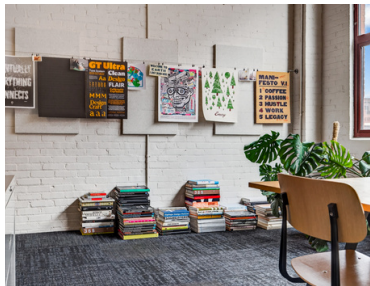

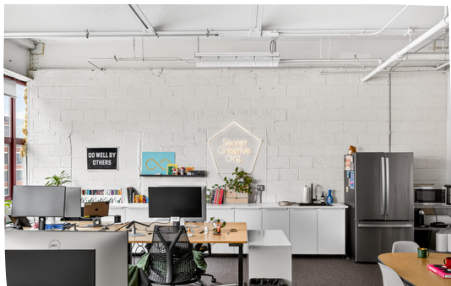

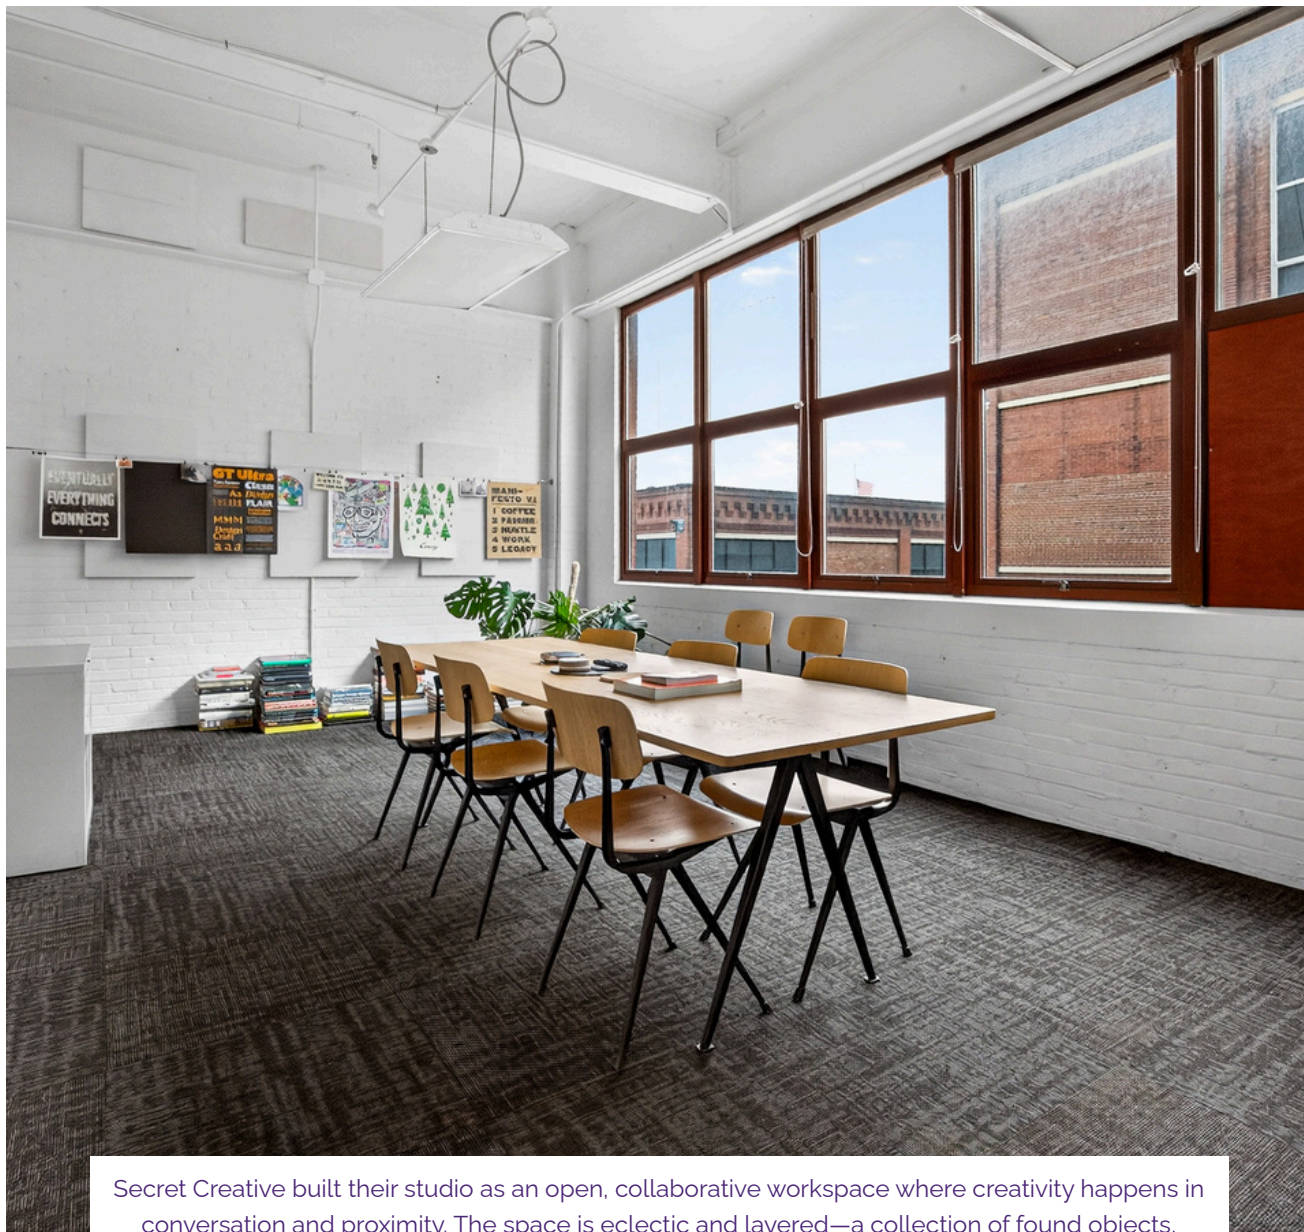

Secret Creative — Suite 518

1105 SF

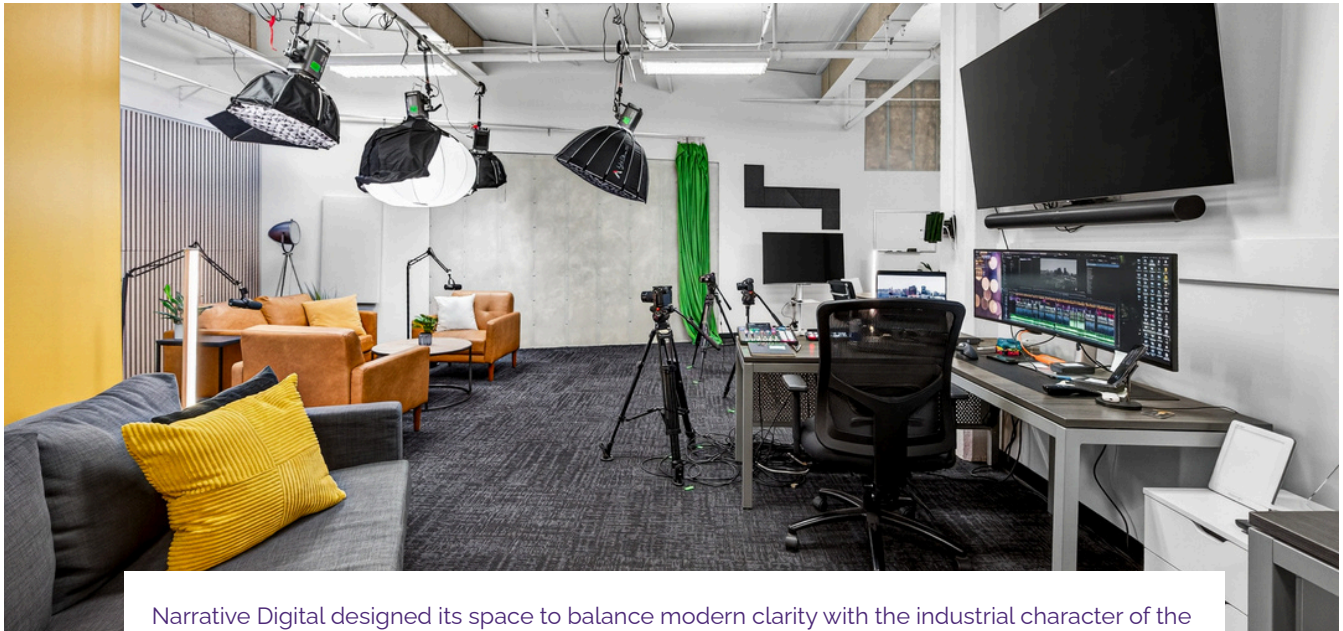

Secret Creative built their studio as an open, collaborative workspace where creativity happens in conversation and proximity. The space is eclectic and layered—a collection of found objects, repurposed pieces, and living elements that give it energy and character. It's designed to feel alive and evolving, supporting a process that's inherently shared, adaptive, and in motion.

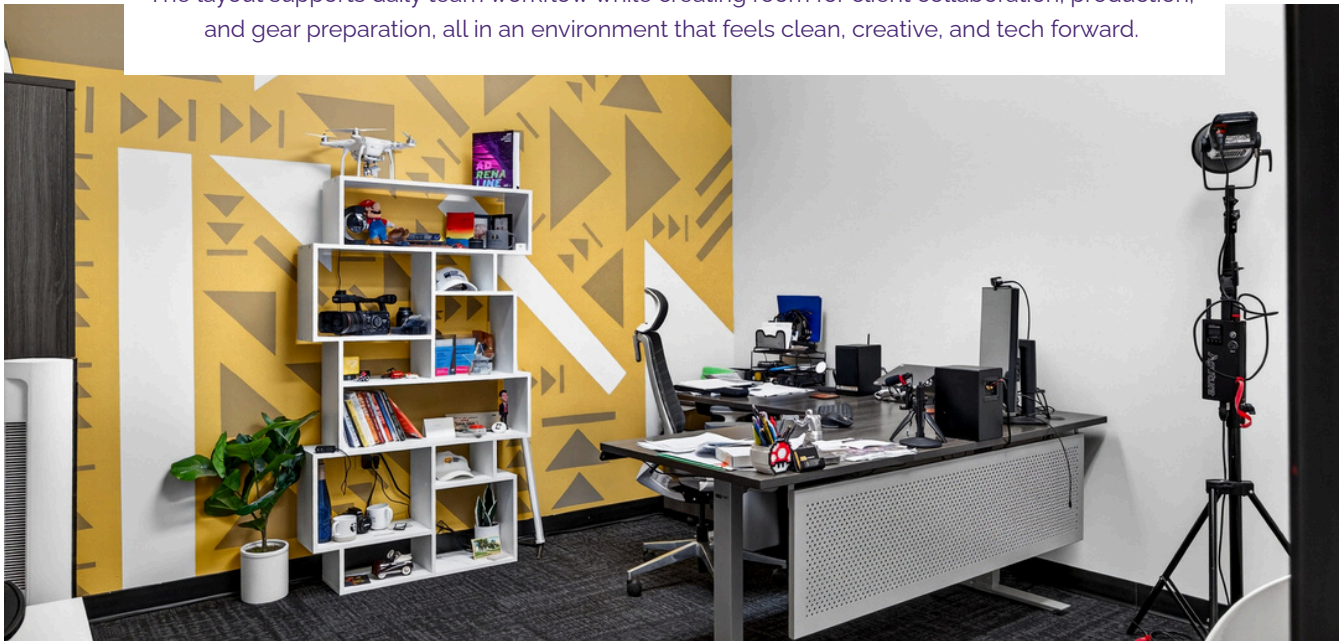

Narrative Digital Media — Suite 714F–G

1105 SF

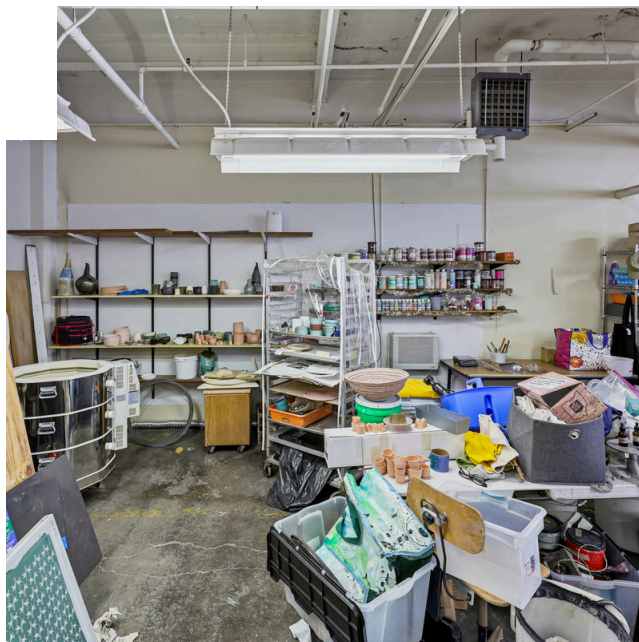

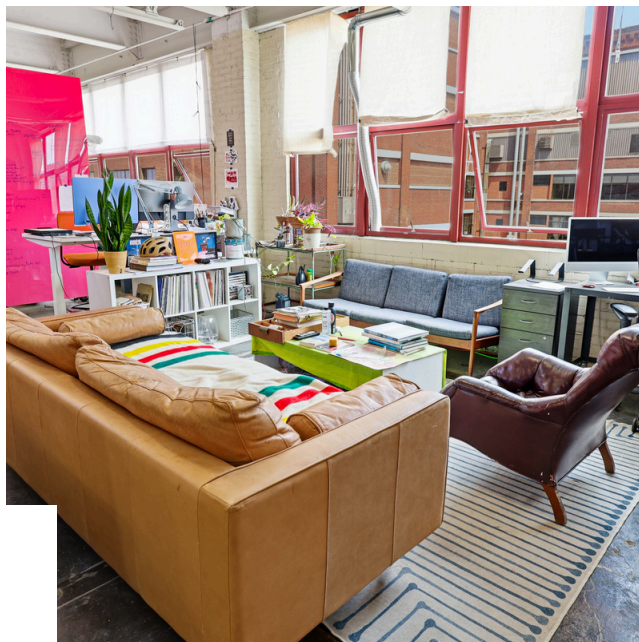

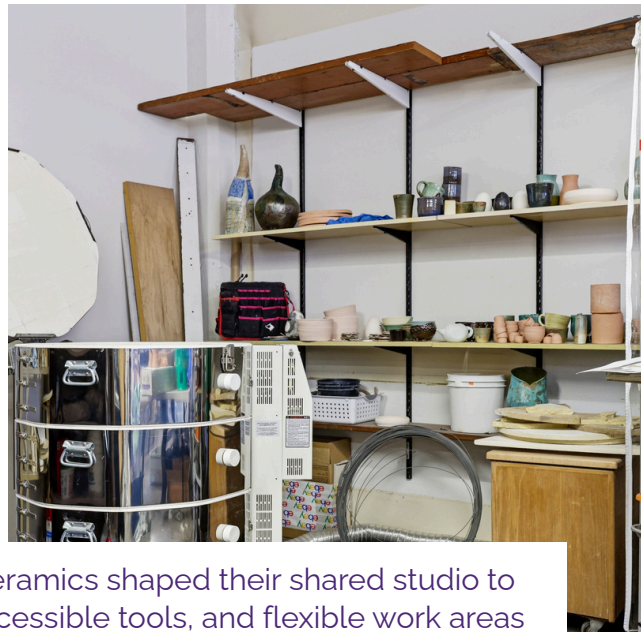

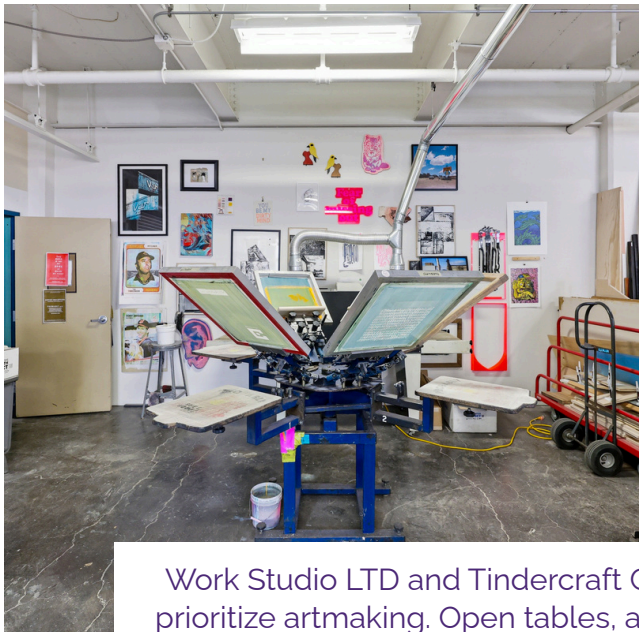

Narrative Digital designed its space to balance modern clarity with the industrial character of the building. Thoughtful lighting and bold color bring energy to a wide open floor without windows. The layout supports daily team workflow while creating room for client collaboration, production, and gear preparation, all in an environment that feels clean, creative, and tech forward.

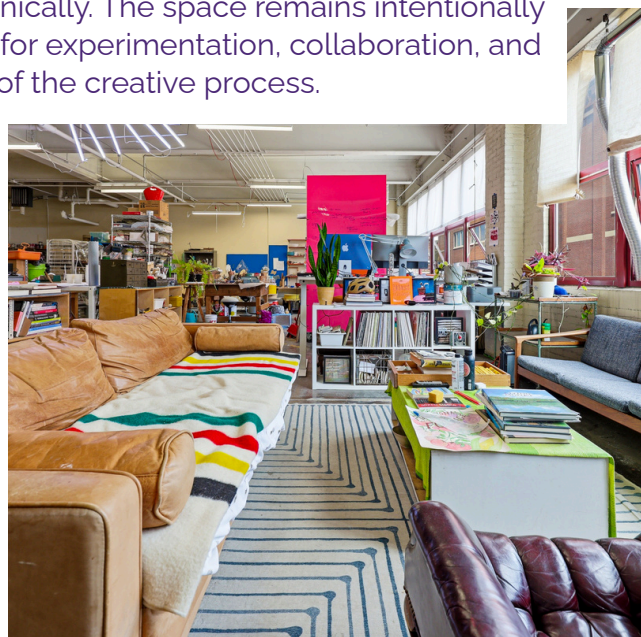

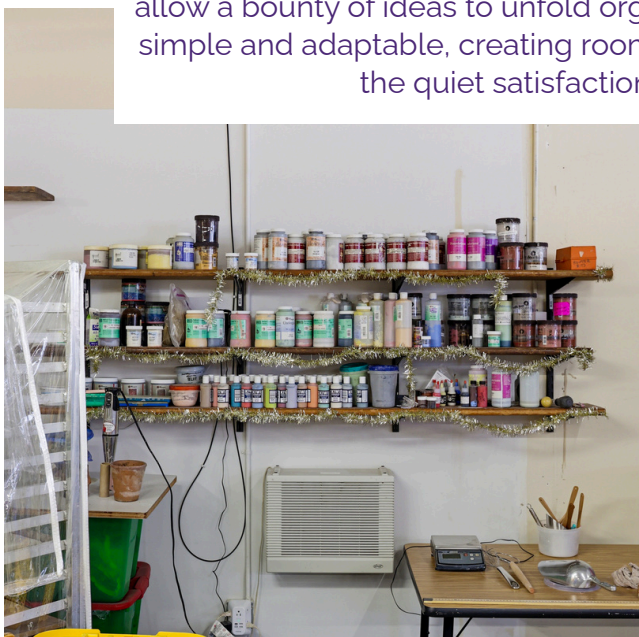

Work Studio & Tindercraft — Suite 406A

2200 SF

Work Studio LTD and Tindercraft Ceramics shaped their shared studio to prioritize artmaking. Open tables, accessible tools, and flexible work areas allow a bounty of ideas to unfold organically. The space remains intentionally simple and adaptable, creating room for experimentation, collaboration, and the quiet satisfaction of the creative process.

Birchwood Supply — Suite 414

1610 SF

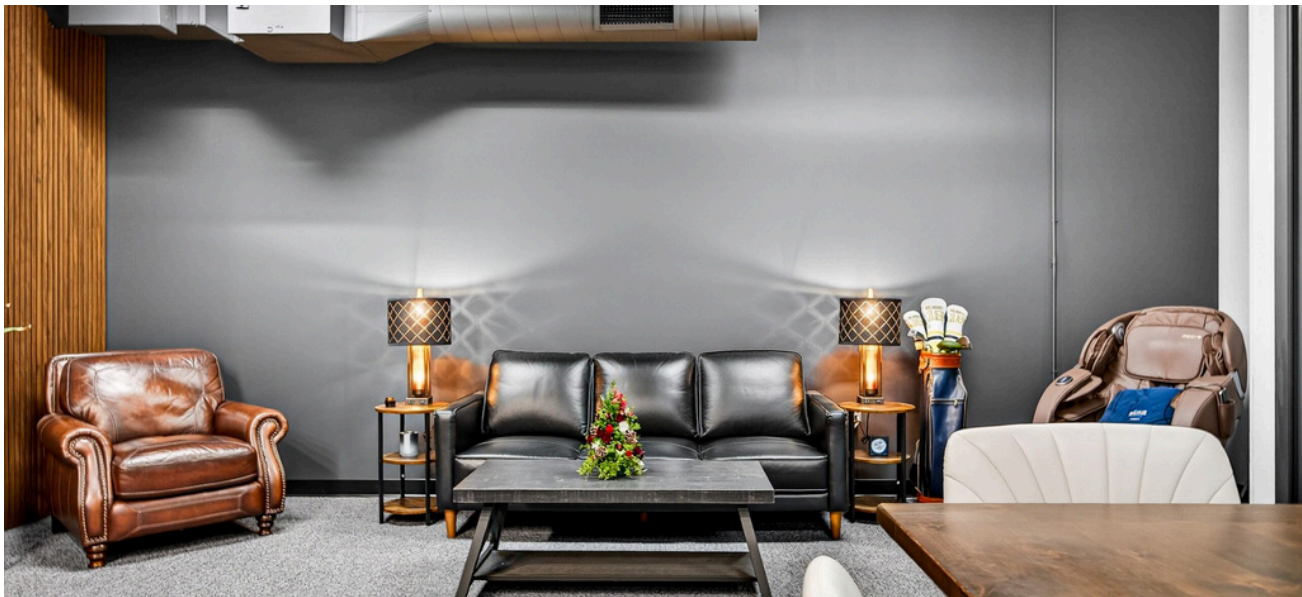

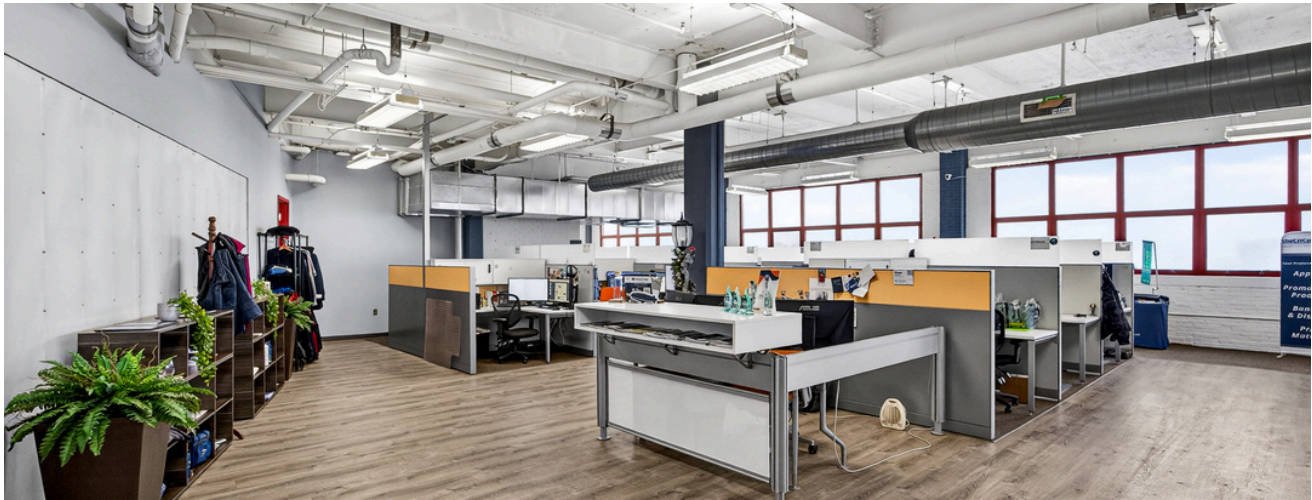

After nearly six years at Bounce, Birchwood Supply's space remains a living canvas. White brick walls, tall ceilings, and concrete floors frame a layered collection of artwork, objects, and evolving ideas. This little corner of the world in 414 has allowed creativity to reach new levels, constantly reshaping the space as both studio and gathering place.

Consolidus — Suite 804

6040SF

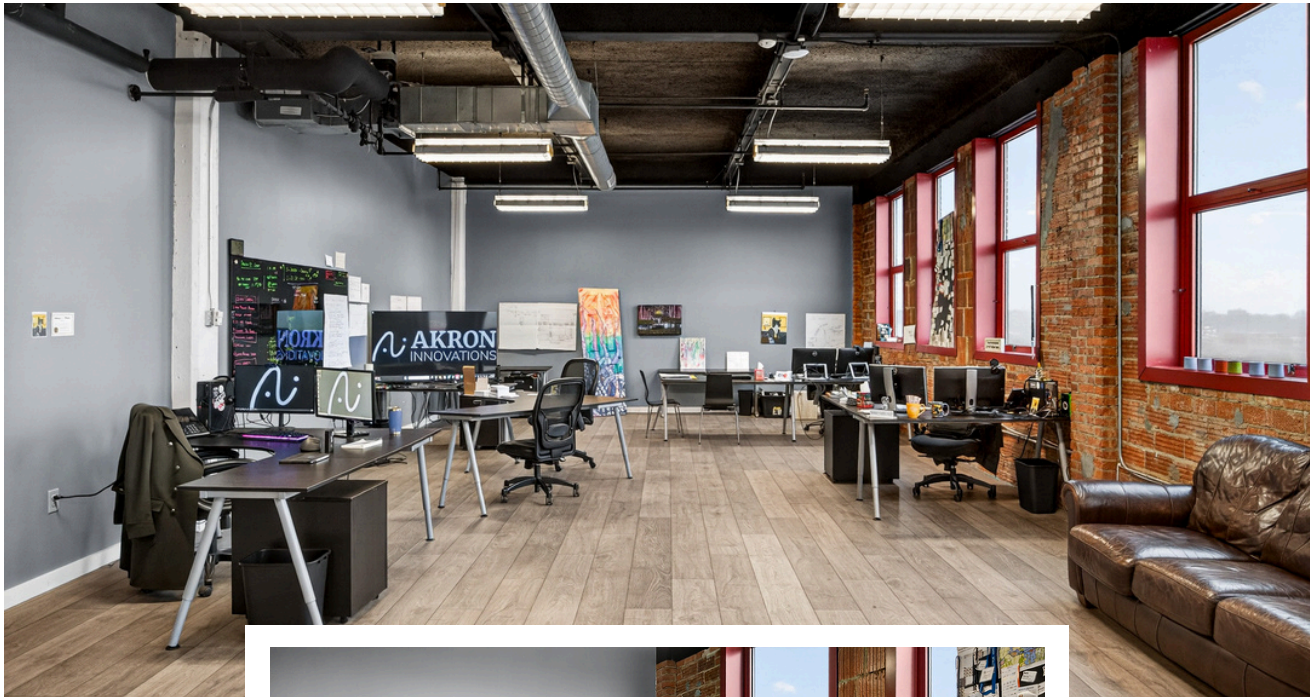

Consolidus is intentional about its space and the role it plays in growing the company. The suite is designed to uplift the team with high-quality personal and collaborative areas while making a strong, brand-reflective statement to partners, employees, and investors.

Akron Innovations — Suite 908A

1015 SF

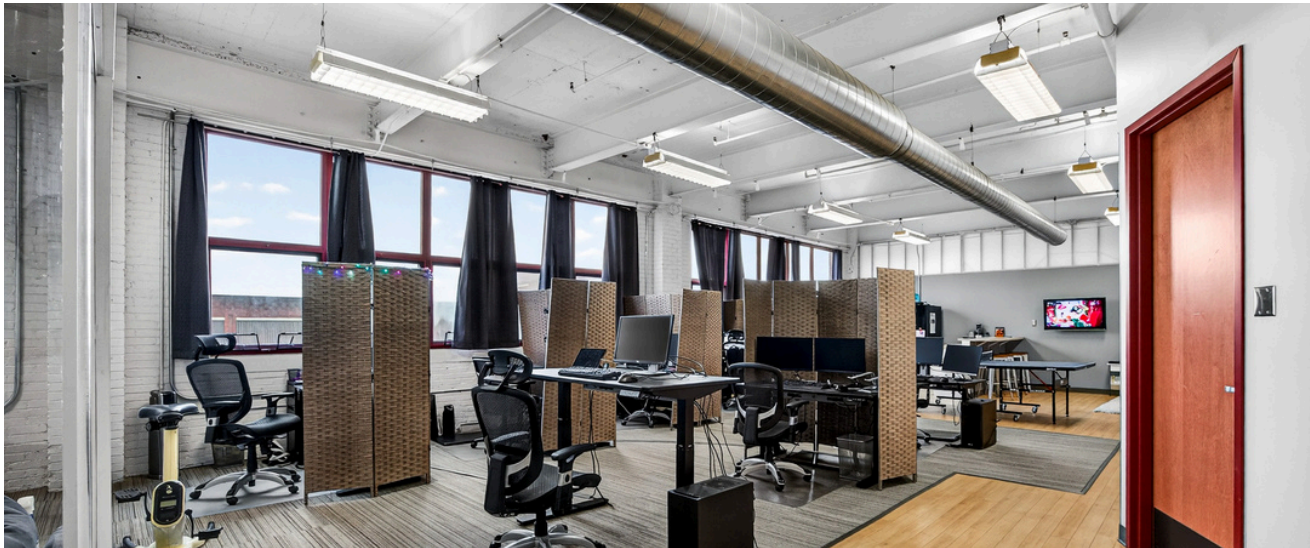

Akron Innovations treats creative expression as part of doing business, supporting local art and letting the space stay dynamic as pieces rotate throughout the year. Color, texture, and a little startup energy keep the office feeling human in a tech-forward world. The suite's industrial character nods to Akron's roots and the team's love of purposeful design.

Embold — Suite 701A-D

SF

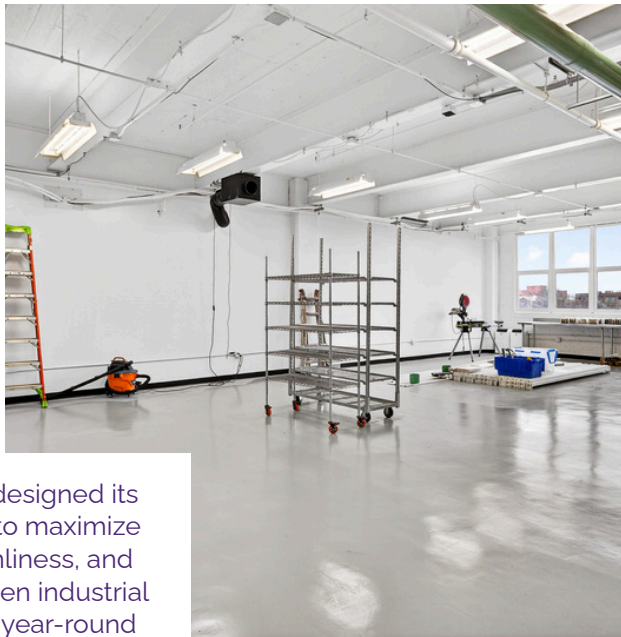

Embold is designed around a glass-walled conference room that keeps the suite open, visible, and alive. The layout balances private focus areas with an open staff zone using semi-private workstations for just enough separation. A lounge and play zone keeps things fun and lighthearted without losing the workday flow.

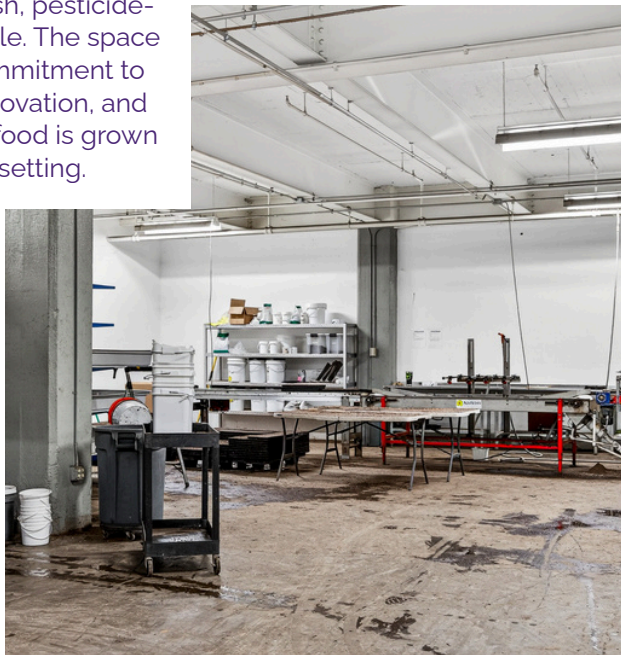

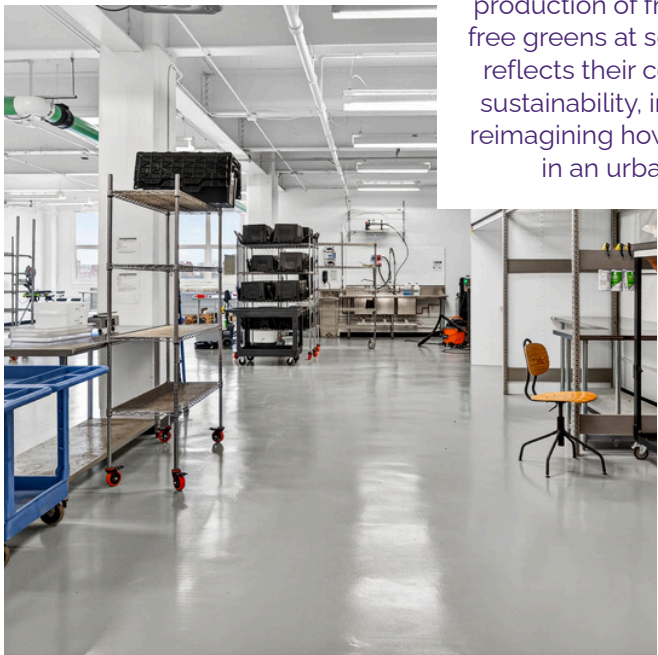

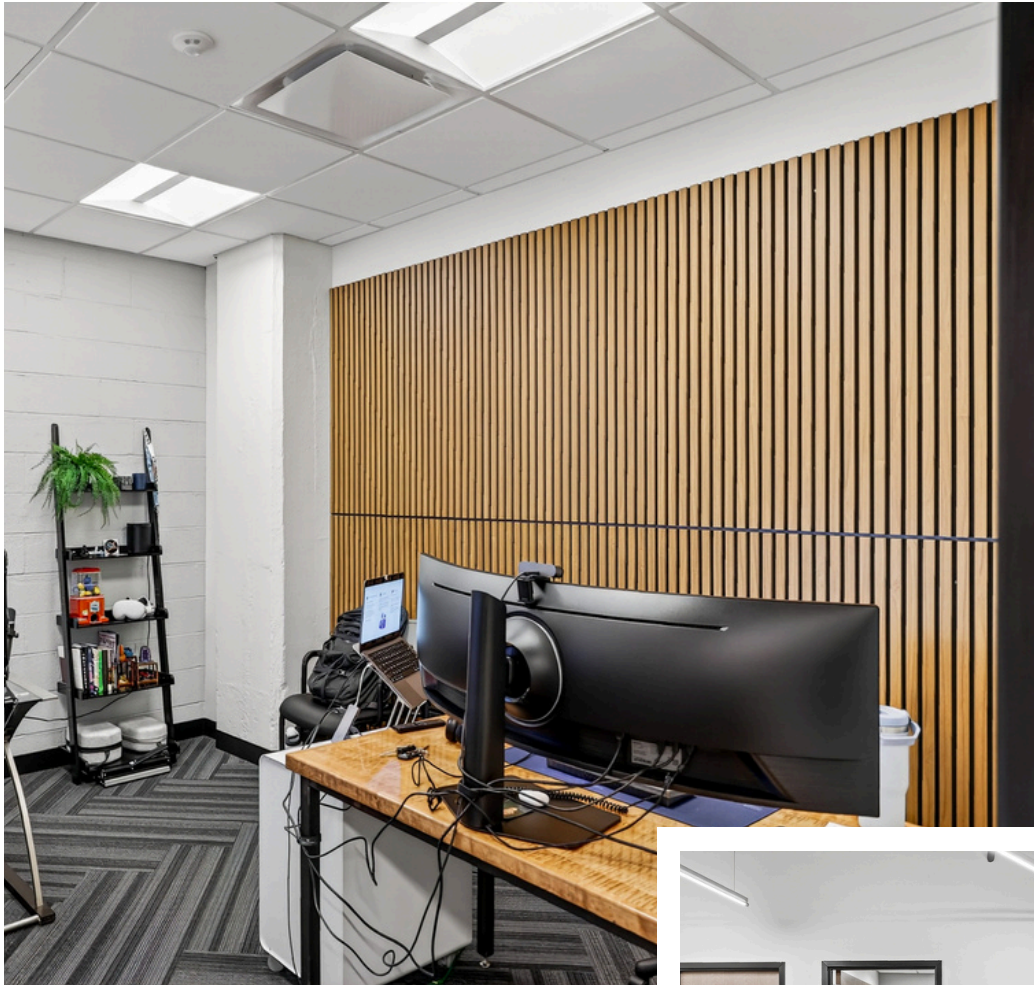

Vigeo Garden — 3rd Floor 30,000 SF

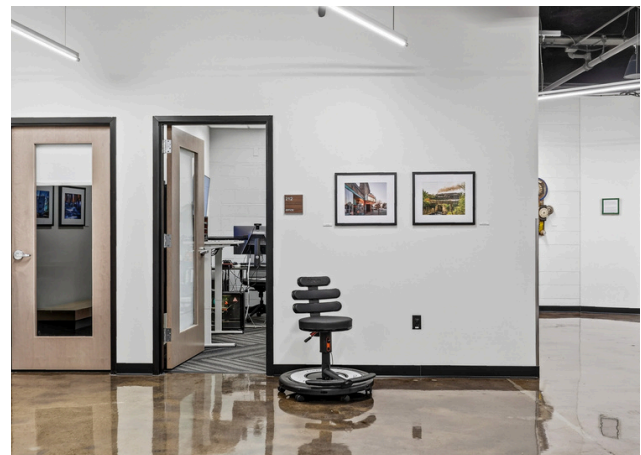

Vigeo Gardens designed its third-floor farm to maximize efficiency, cleanliness, and precision. The open industrial layout supports year-round production of fresh, pesticide-free greens at scale. The space reflects their commitment to sustainability, innovation, and reimagining how food is grown in an urban setting.

Small but mighty, Skyhopper's space packs in everything the team needs within 148 square feet. Practical tools and experimental hardware share the room with personal objects that tell the team's story. A wood accent wall warms the space and softens sound—ready for future media production.

Skyhopper ^{149 SF} — Suite 212

4 Corners — Suite 801C

550 SF

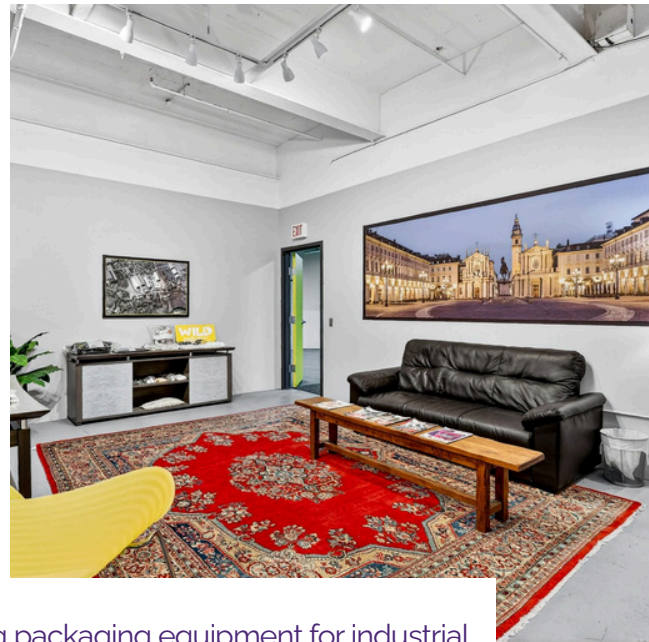

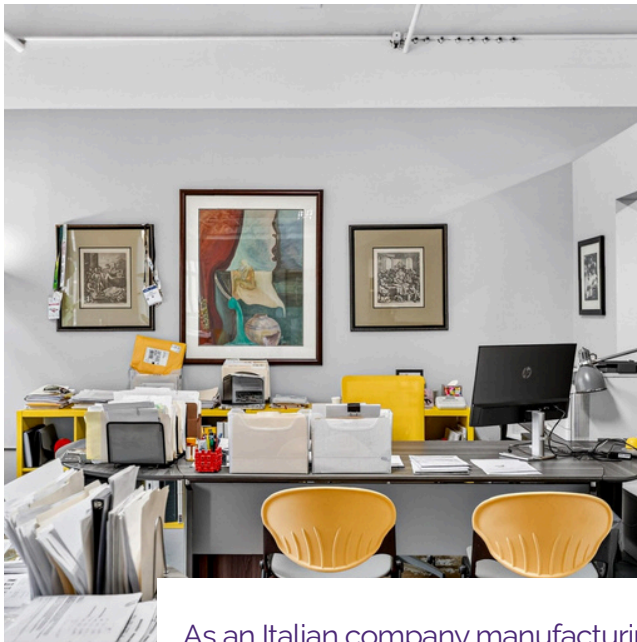

4 Corners is designed to feel personal and grounded—part home office, part creative reset. Sentimental pieces, a few playful details, and a comfortable setup make the space welcoming and distinctly “theirs.” It’s built for focused work, with just enough fun to keep the day light.

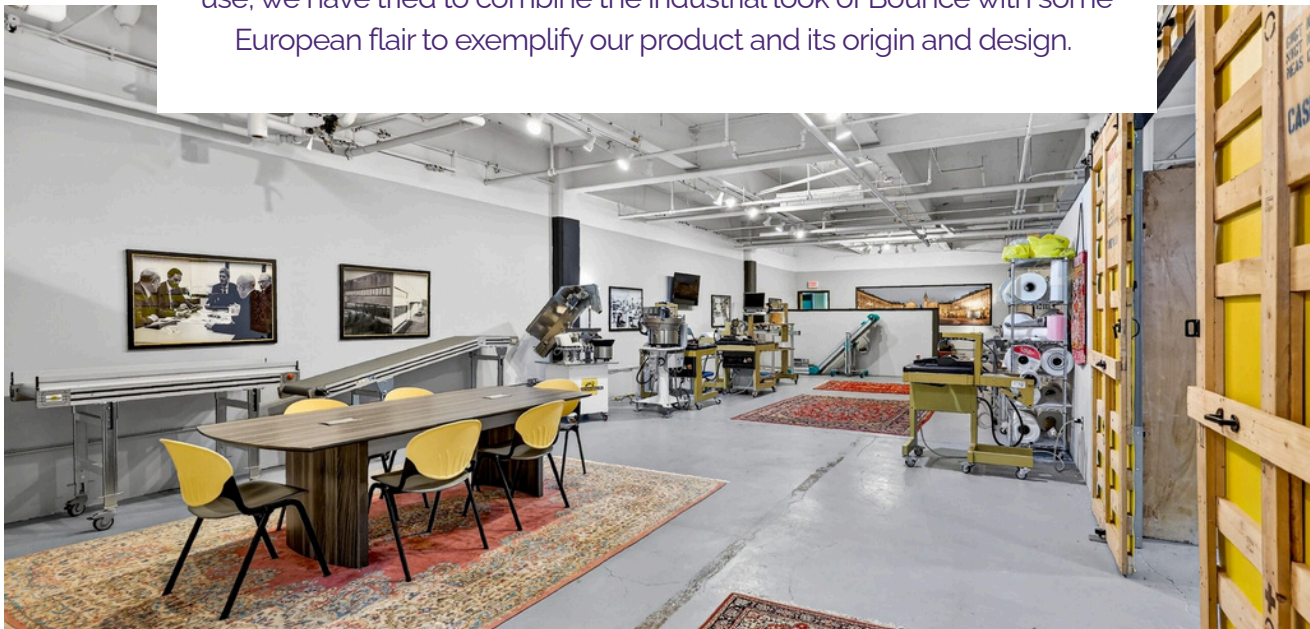

Ravizza Packaging — Suite 407

As an Italian company manufacturing packaging equipment for industrial use, we have tried to combine the industrial look of Bounce with some European flair to exemplify our product and its origin and design.

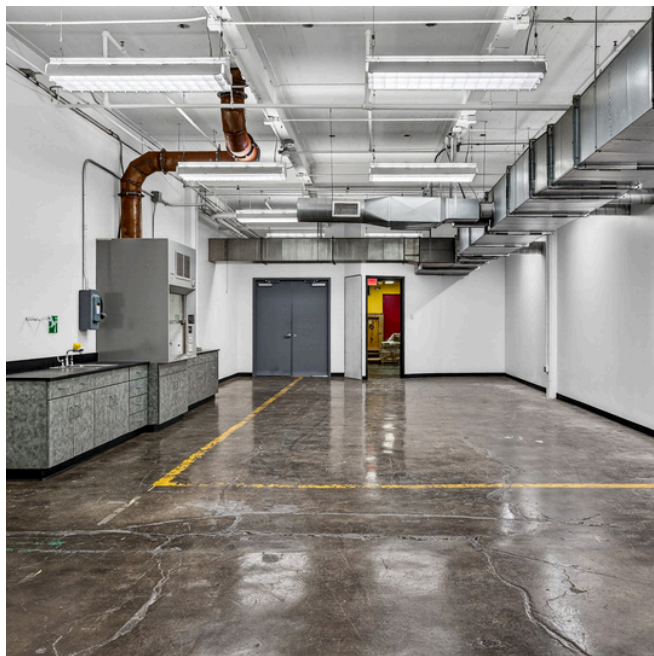

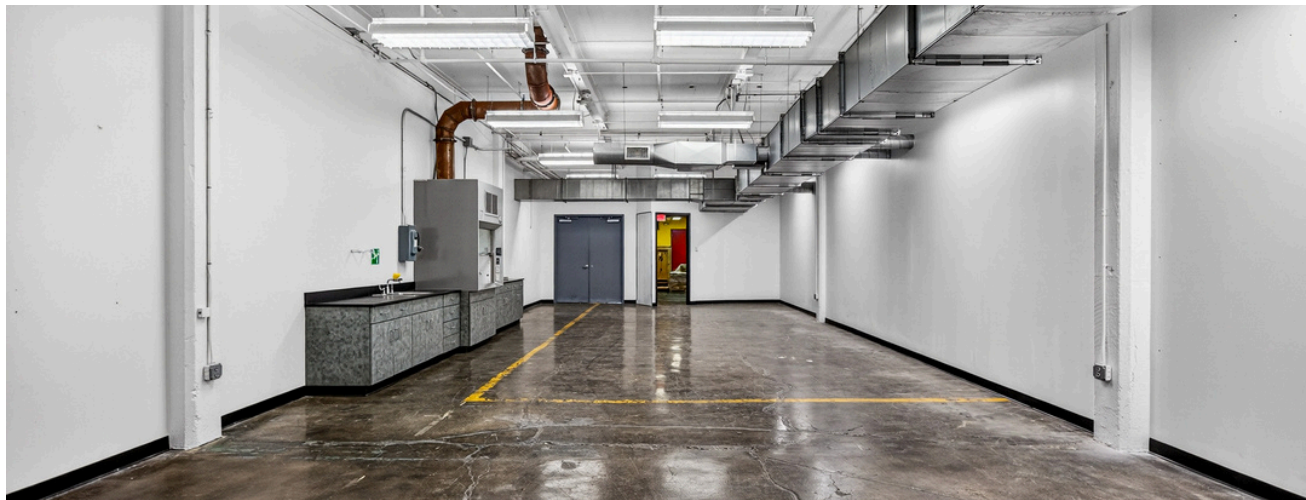

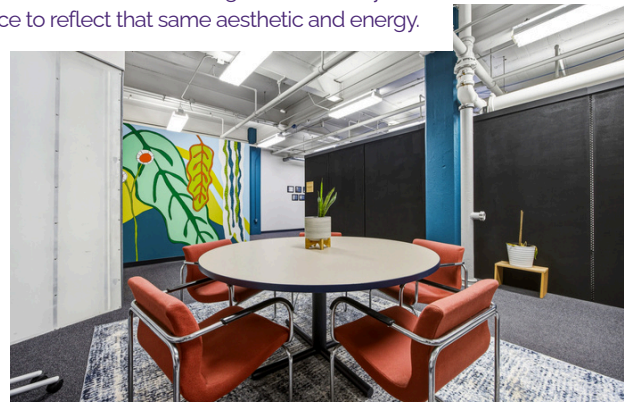

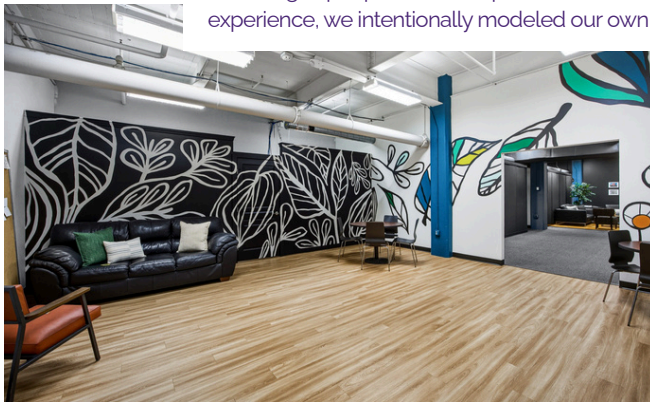

Smaltz Insurance — Suite 106

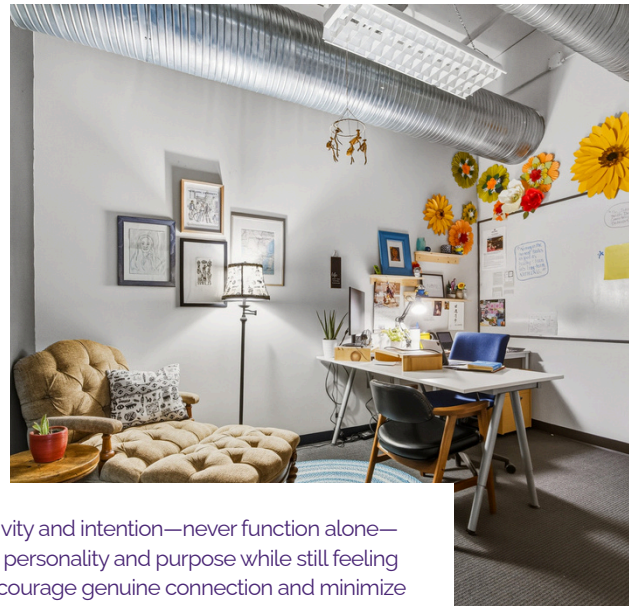

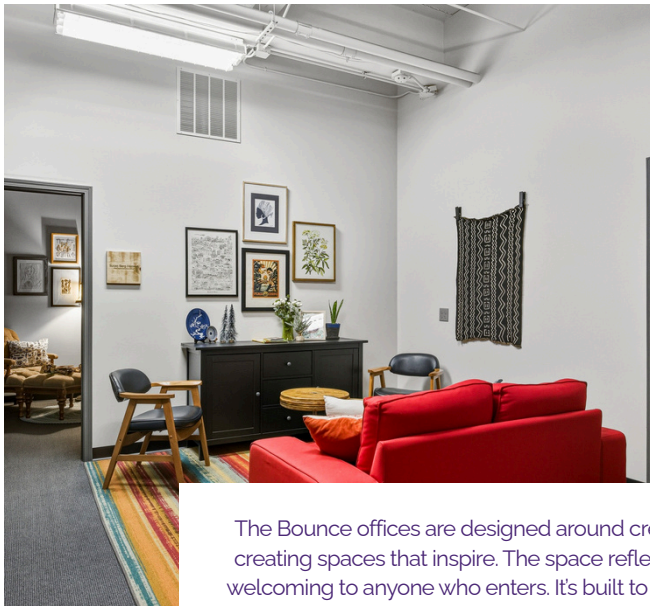

Smaltz Insurance's space was created to help clients feel at ease when they visit her office. She prioritizes creating a safe, welcoming environment where important topics such as life insurance and health benefit options can be discussed comfortably. Elements of her décor reflect both this inclusive philosophy and her appreciation for Latin culture. For clients who prefer to discuss their insurance needs in Spanish, she's happy to say, "¡Vámonos!"

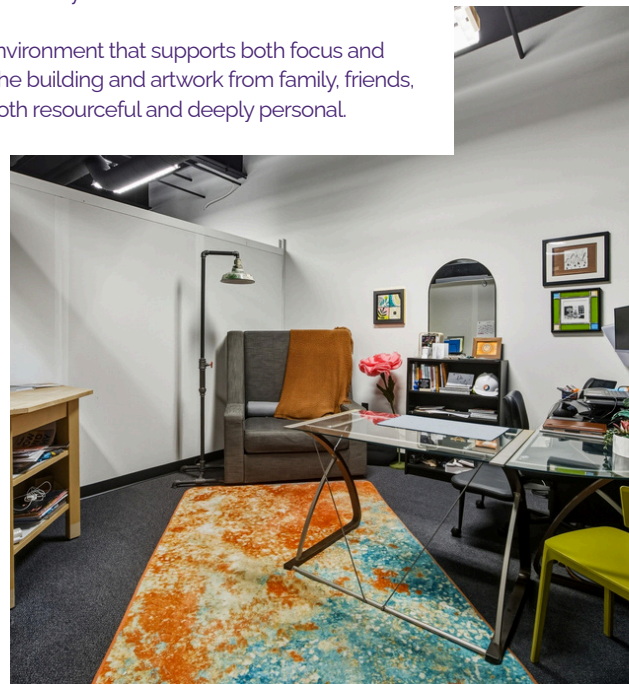

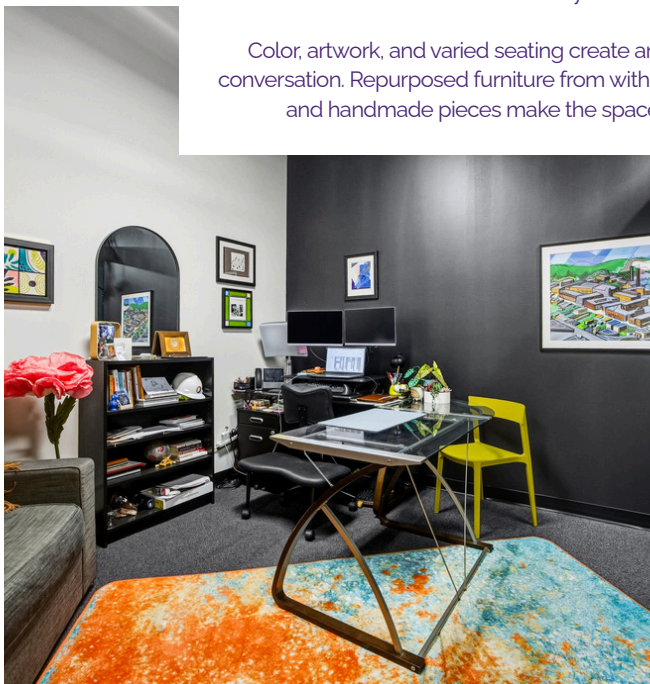

Vacant Lab—Suite 822AB

The Bounce offices are designed around creativity and intention—never function alone—creating spaces that inspire. The space reflects personality and purpose while still feeling welcoming to anyone who enters. It's built to encourage genuine connection and minimize any sense of hierarchy.

Color, artwork, and varied seating create an environment that supports both focus and conversation. Repurposed furniture from within the building and artwork from family, friends, and handmade pieces make the space both resourceful and deeply personal.
